Our online store helps to purchase and order glass partitions and doors. A: Port forwarding means that from your computer you can connect to some remote computer using a specific port number. For example, if you want to connect to the router computer on port 8080,

then you would type the following address into your browser: :8080

Note: the computer name is the computer name you would use in a hostname to connect to the computer. Therefore, when you use port forwarding, you are requesting that the computer on port 8080 on the router accepts your connection and forwards it to the hostname or computer name. Since you can only connect to computers that are currently turned on and that have an IP address, the
