Hypogonadism and erectile dysfunction in Cushing's disease. To study the effect of hypercortisolism on reproductive and sexual functions in patients with Cushing's disease. In this case-control study, 26 male patients with Cushing's disease and 31 age-matched healthy controls were enrolled. The International Index of Erectile Function (IIEF) was administered to all the participants, and the serum levels of sex hormones, including luteinizing hormone, follicle-stimulating hormone, total testosterone, and free testosterone, were measured. The mean age of the patients was 42.1 +/- 12.1 years. The total testosterone and free testosterone levels of the patients were significantly lower than those of the controls. In the total sample, the mean IIEF score was 54.8 +/- 16.3, and the IIEF score for the patients was significantly lower than that of the controls (mean IIEF score: 64.1 +/- 16.1; P The truth of the matter is, no one wants to pay more taxes. That goes for every group of people, from the rich and wealthy to the poor and underpaid.
